I agree with Mr. Wattles that there should be "no false or incomplete argument" on either side. It was for this reason that I called attention to his following statement which had been and still is repeatedly advanced by those in favor of annexation, i.e., "The country district, under the law, can make no public improvements at a reasonable cost, more than those now in evidence. It is impossible to force a cooperative improvement, such as grading or curbing a street, if any of the property owners object. Such laws as the Vrooman act are not applicable to the country districts."

I did not accuse Mr. Wattles of intenticnal misrepresentation when he made his kitatement, did not know of the road district improvement act." His reply amply justifies my assumption that he was not conversant with it.

The most of them were very satisfactorily disposed of by Mr. A. Matson, Mr. W. C. Wattles and the chairman, but they proved to be so numerous that some were of necessity slighted. The chairman stated that unanswered questions would be answered later in circular form by the association. Mr. Fram expressed the opinion that the questions were not all put in good faith and scored the quist for their tactics. To this Mr. Carnack attempted to reply but was suled out of order on the ground of the unparliamentary nature of his remarks. The bunch had a hunch that Hunchberger's latch string was on the outside last Friday night and about 8 o'clock they began to accumulate at the heretofore mentioned place. When the accumulation had reached two dozen "soles," it was thought best to take up the large mass of business that had acumulated—pardon our repetition for we are shy on language—since the last convocation, in order that the session might be adjourned in time to miss the last car. The first part of the meeting was devoted to the purely intellectual side of the organization's work. The subject for the evening was "Clubs and How to Use Them." The concensus of opinion seemed to favor discarding them as a general rule.

At the close of this intellectual feast Mr. and Mrs. Hunchberger both made several motions, all in the vicinity of the kitchen, which were duly approved by the "Bunch." Mrs. Hunchberger is famous for her ability to tickle the palate and her efforts in that direction certainly did not go unrewarded. The club points with pride to its ability to make the hostess feel that her efforts in their behalf have been duly appreclated. This part of the program certainly was a treat. The evening closed with a hilarious one-act stunt by that celebrated Hebrew artist. "Abie" Howe.

GLENDALE'S SPECIAL POLICE.

GLENDALE'S SPECIAL POLICE.

For sevral months past, Mr. J. W. Everett has beer employed in the capacity of special night watchman by a number of the business concerns of Glendale with very satisfactory results. The charge to the firms contributing has been very small in proportion to the services rendered, amounting to about 65 cents per month. Recently some of the contributors have defaulted in their payments, some of these having conceived the idea that as they "pay taxes," they should receive this protection without extra cost. It seems to us that this point is not well taken; the special charge over the business houses who receive this special protection is a most equitable one, certainly much more fair than to take it out of the general fund. There is probably no large city where special police officers are not employed at the expense of certain business concerns to protection is not made to the contribution of the contribution their property, and in a small place like Glendale with its one police of-ficer (marshal) the necessity is even greater. We hope that the business concerns in Glendale are sufficiently prosperous to stand this monthly as-sessment.

HOUSE WARMING FOR FATHER

O'NEIL.

On December 15th the ladies of the parish are planning to give a reception in the new parochial residence adjoining the church, which will be in the nature of a housewarming. It will be three years on the 12th inst. since the rector, Rev. James S. O'Neill was appointed to the parishes of Glendale and Burbank, and during that period he has built two churches and a parish residence. The residence as yet is unfurnished but the ladies are hoping that the housewarming will remedy this defect.

The Brownsberger basket-ball team return match on the afternoon of December 2nd, with the Los Angeles high school team on the latters court. The line-up is as follows:

SAFETY IN CHOLERA BLOCK SYS-TEM.

TEM.

1. The presence in California of cholera suspects from plague devastated areas of Europe is being checked by numbered stick-pin flags on the map of the state bard of health in Sacramento. The pins in the map play a part in a unique adaptation of the safety block system applied to means of health protection which are intended to safeguard the United States from lone of the most dangerous scourges of the world. So far 25 California towns are pierced by the danger prevention signals of the cholera safety block system. Up to date the stick-pin flags indicate that a total of 75 cholera suspects have come or are en route to California.

countered them. The advertisement was refused therefore because we considered this promise the ear mark of a fraudulent concern. A number of our contemporaries accepted it and still run it, but inquiry of several of them develops the fact that as yet they have received no good money for their space. As a general thing the schools for the teaching of telegraphy are or less a deception as far as any ability to give positions to graduates is concerned. This does not apply to the classes which a few of the railroad companies have of late years established for the teaching of the art.

There are still a number of per turbed citizens, now chiefly found outside the municipality, who refuse to be comforted when the pangs of annexation strike them. But the major ity of the people concerned are looking upon the matter in a judicial spirit and whether in favor of the proposi tion or not, are content to abide by the decision of the majority on January 3d. This is certainly a proper frame of mind to get into. But in the meantime do not fear that in any event the heavens will fall or the sheriff have to sweep up the remains. Neither of these dreadful things will happen There is going to be a Greater Glen dale; it is not a case of now or never, but rather, now or the next time.

"THE VOICE OF THE PEOPLE."

In politics more than in any other field of human activity, perhaps, is noticeable the old truism, "things are not what they seem," and it is emphasized now and again by some instance of insincerity and even rank hypocricy are the part of some public servant. upon the part of some public servant whose professions of reform have won him an undeserved following. This writing, however, is not for the pur-pose of calling attention to any such case, but rather to discuss briefly a practical principle in political affairs. There is an earnest demand just now for laws which will make it easier for the people to rule. As we have said pefore in these columns, there is some doubt as to whether the people are as sincere in this demand as they fondly imagine themselves to be. It is greatthan the one originally laid out by the highway commission.

Lankershim is having trouble in getting its electric railroad. It is seems that the agreement as to bonus was made between the railroad people and the Suburban Homes Co., the amount being $10,060, of which the people and the Suburban Homes Co., the amount being $10,060, of which the people and the Suburban Homes Co., the amount being $10,060, of which the people of Lankershim agreed to pay $35,000. Now the railroad company asks for an extension of time, saying the road "must wait until June is the text instead of April 1st." causing much dissatisfaction-mong subscribers.

Mary Baker Eddy is dead. No one will dispute the fact that she was a great woman, whether her work utimately shall prove to be good or ill. Christian Science lives; whether it will long exist, time-alone can tell. Perhaps it is a religion, but if so the world must revise all its former conceptions of the word, The founders of other great religious sects have builded their structures upon the homely virtues of unselfahneas, self-denial, sacriface, but Mary Baker Eddy leaves a fortune of two million dollars.

In theory, the democratic govern ment, the government by the where one man is supposed to have as much influence as another, is beautiful dream; but in practice when applied to large bodies of people it is a "barren ideality." It works all right or nearly so, in a small communi ing, provided the meeting was not to large, but in a larger and wider so the best that we can seriously he for is the representative government bequeathed to us by the fathers of the republic. becomes the promise of its accomplishment. The writer attended the dinner of the City Club at the Westminste last Saturday and listened with about three hundred others to the debate be tween Leslie Hewitt and Lee Gates. both state senators- elect. Mr. Hewitt is an able speaker and it is fair to presume that he put up the best possible argument in favor of the proposition. But it certainly was lamentably weak in that it dealt altogether in generalities except when he attempted to make a comparison between the tax rates of San Francisco and Los Angeles, showing that for a number of years past, rates have been considerably higher in the southern city. It did not require a lawyer of Mr. Gates' ability to point out the unfairness of making such a comparison without placing it side by side with the assessed valuations, which Mr. Gates did call attention to the fact that in the single matter of expenditure for road work alone, Los Angeles county with its hundreds of miles of roads extending over its area of fair thousand square, miles, can scarcely be compared with San Francisco where there are almost no road expenditures. Mr. Hewitt's argument was a plea for the centralization of power which he claimed would be more efficient than if exercised by the various communities. Los Angeles will have water and power to dispose of as long as it has a "surplus" only and should have territorial jurisdiction over territory where they are distributed. He spoke of the present law permitting cities to have their taxe collected by the county, and objected to it on the ground that the city should have actual control over a those who serve it. The sympathie of the audience were clearly with M. Hewitt and the best points made b. Mr. Gates fell upon their ears with duil thud, but left their impression. In the first place Mr. Gates stated tha city and county consolidation can under existing laws only be brough about by creating a new county, unless the proposed consolidation takes in the entire county, which the consolidationists do not desire. If a new county is created it will have to be the city of Los Angeles and its additions and must have a new name, the outside portions being the original Los Angeles and its additions and must have a new name, the outside portions being the original Los Angeles county. # "BACK TO THE FARM

XVI,-What Co-operation Is Doing For the Farmer.

By C. V. GREGORY.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Asso-

UTSIDE of education, the UTSIDE of education, the greatest force which is working for the uplift of the farmer is co-operation. Co-operation is bringing the farmers together, teaching them to think and act and work in unison. It is enabling them to market their products most efficiently and at least expense. Co-operation control to the control of the products of the control of the control efficiently and at least expense. Cooperation seems to be the only logical means of reducing the great army of nonproducing middlemen.

There are many sections of the United States where co-operation is working successfully. One of the striking instances of successful co-operation is the grain elevator business of the middle west. The idea of cooperative buying and selling had long been talked of among farmers, but-it was not until 1890 that the first successful organization for this purpose ssful organization for this purpose

NEARLY A THOUSAND CO-OPERATIVE ELE-VATORS IN THE MIDDLE WEST.

was established. This was located at Rockwell, Ia., and was known as the Rockwell, Ia., and was known as the Rockwell Co-operative Elevator company. The conditions in the grain trade at this time and even up to within the last half decade were such that the farmer was held up unmercifully. There were two classes of elevators—the line companies and the independents. Nearly all of these independents. Nearly all of these were banded together in the form of state associations. In several states the officers of these state associations fixed prices arbitrarily, sending out price cards to the members every morning. These were based more on the competition in the locality than upon the market demand for grain. Finally most of the competition was done away with, except in form by pooling combinations. The different elevators in a town paid various rates to keep up a show of competition, and at the end of each month the profits were divided. Thus it made no particular difference which elevator, did the tive association was organized. From all sides advice poured in upon the or-ganizers of the new company. They were told that the place for the farm-er was in his fields and that business would better be left to business men. The farmers went doggedly ahead, subscribed stock and put up an ele-vator. The Grain Dealers' association sought to crush them by competition, but the founders had provided for that: They had inserted a protection claus in the constitution which compelle each of their members to pay the ass each of their members to pay the asso-ciation one-fourth of a cent for each bushel of grain sold to a rival com-pany. When the line company offered more than the farmers were able to pay they got the grain. But the one-fourth of a cent a bushel was turned into the treasury of the farmers' company to pay expenses.

Since that time the co-operative idea has spread throughout the middle western states until nearly every town has its co-operative elevator. There are at present nearly a thousand cooperative elevator companies in the middle west. They do a business ag-gregating hundreds of millions of dol-lars a year. They do it at cost to the farmers: So far this co-operative ele-vator movement has helped the conmer only indirectly. When the grain sumer only indirectly. When the grain reaches the markets it is turned over to the terminal elevators. Here it is past the farmer's control. The rest of the way to the consumer is through the the way to the consumer is through the same cumbersome, expensive system from which the farmers escaped by co-operation. One big leak comes in the lack of federal inspection at these markets. Low grade grain comes in and high grade grain comes out. The consumer pays the bill, and the terminal elevator men grow fat on the

It is but a question of time until cooperative companies will handle the grain from the time it leaves the grower until it reaches the consumer.
When a system like this is put into working order and the discriminatory freight rates that favor the large cities are done away with the problem of getting the products from producer to consumer at least expense will be solved. When an eastern feeder or miller wants a car of corn he can have it billed direct from a co-operative association in Kansas. It will go through no expensive terminals, and expensive loading and unloading will be done away with. It is but a question of time until co-

The system of co-operation which has been worked out by the most progressive of the farmers' elevator companies insures to the farmers every cent that their grain is worth. The manager buys as close to the markets as he can with safety. At the close of the year any accumulated profits are divided among the members of the association in proportion to the business they have done. The agregate saying that has come to farmers through these co-operative associations can hardly be estimated.

This saving has enabled the farmers to build better homes and improve their farms. It has brought them together, and developed a community split. Co-operation has been extended to other things. The elevator companies usually handle coal, four, humber, etc. They are coming to handle wagons and farm machinery.

Connectiate cremeries have been her, etc. They are coming to handle wagons and farm machinery. Co-operative creameries have been organized throughout all the dairy dis-tricts of the country. These have been able to compéte successfully with cenable to compete successfully with cen-tralized plants, and the competition has compelled the centralizers to keep prices up. Even then the co-operative ereameries handle most of the cream from their territory. A typical co-operative creamery in eastern Iowa may be taken as an example of the value of these creameries to the farm-operative creamery in eastern lowal may be taken as an example of the value of these creameries to the farmers. This creamery saves about $6.000 each year to its patrons.

The fruit growers of Michigan and California have been very successful in co-operative marketing. The conditions which led up to this were much the same as those in the grain belt before co-operation came to the rescue.

In the live stock industry co-operation is a comparatively new thing, but already it is accomplishing results. Two years ago the woolgrowers of Wyoming formed a co-operative wool storage company. Large warehouses were built to hold the product, and instead of all being dumped on the market at once it was sold gradually, and the usual break in the market and the usual break in the market was avoided. By this means more than a million dollars was saved to the Wyoming woolgrowers in one year. The Corn Belt Meat Producers' as-sociation has in mind the establishment of a co-operative packing house. This is a practical way of bringing the beef trust to terms and will be a thousand times more effective than all the meat boycotts ever devised.

In many more ways co-operation is helping the farmer to market his products. Co-operation has never falled except when it has tried to limit proexcept when it has tried to limit production and force up prices artificially, as has been the case at times in the tobacco and cotton districts of the south. But this is not true co-operation. It is monopoly, and it is better that it should fail. True co-operationseks rather to increase production than to limit it. It makes its profits by cutting down the expense of marketing rather than by raising prices above their normal level. Natural conditions of supply and demand, if not interfered with by trusts and combinations, can be depended upon to regulate prices so that they will be fair to both producer and consumer.

are usually backed by all the assets of the farmer stockholders. They are run on business principles.

One other great problem confronts the farmers in this country, which cooperation has solved in Germany. That is the problem of landownership. A permanent, prosperous agriculture is possible only where the majority of the farmers own the land they cultivate. The proportion of tenant farmers in the United States is steadly increasing. From 25 per cent in 1890 it increased to 36 per cent in 1900. The 1910 census will show in all probability that nearly half the farms in the ity that nearly half the farms in the United States are worked by tenants. Germany has solved this problem by co-operative lean associations which include all the farmers in a community, and the entire assets of the community, and the entire assets of the community, are pledged to the company as security. On this security the company borrows large sums of money at very low rates of interest. This money is used to purchase land for members upon approval of the board of directors. The farmer who borrows money from the association pays it back in easy payments extending over a period of forty years or so. He is charged a quarter of a cent more interest than the association pays. This quarter of a cent is used to pay expenses and to provide a sinking fund to cover losses. It has always been amply sufficient for these purposes. Under this plan the farmers can buy land by making annual payments that amount to little more than the rent. Tenancy in Germany has been decreasing ever since this plan went into operation.

The Bank of Glendale

Did you ever think about the good a bank account with us could be to you?
First, Your money is safer in the BANK than anywhere else.

Paying bills by check is the simplest, safest and most convenient method; and your check becomes a receipt for what you pay.

It gives you a better standing in the community, especially among business men, to pay by check rather than by cash.

To be known as "having money in the bank" strengthens one's credit.

Dr. and Mrs. C. C. Farrow of Durand street entertained a number of their friends and acquaintances Wednesday evening at their home. The occasion was the first of a series of "At Homes" planned for the coming Wednesdays during the winter social season.

Clizens who are interested in the development of Clendale are requested to attend the open meeting of the chamber of commerce next Tuesday evening in the I. O. O. F. hall, and obtain an impression as to the work of this organization. There will be an excellent program provided.

At excellent program provided.

A glance at the show window of the dry goods store of Mr. G. E. Williams, Fourth and Glendale, will dispel the idea too frequently entertained that our stores do not keep the best goods. The display there is not large nor in any way pretentions, but the fabrics are such as the eye delights to dwell upon.

The pupils of the Fourth street grammar school will give their Christ-mas exercises on Thursday afterboon. December 15, at 2 o'clock, at the school building. The program will consist of Christmas carols and songs by all the grades. The seventh and eighth grades will render "Gloria" from Mozart's Twelfth Mass.

The arrival of Mrs. R. H. Wells Saturday at her home on West Fourth street will complete a four months' absence spent at the various points of interest in Wyoming, Colorado and Arizona. Mrs. Wells left Monday evening to meet Mrs. Wells in Winslow, Ariz., after which a short time will be spent in Grand Canyon, leaving in time to reach Glendale Saturday morning.

Much interest is being shown in the coming match baseball game between the Verdugo Park team and the Jewel City nine, the game to take place on the Verdugo Park diamond next Sunday afternoon.

Two weeks ago the Verdugos beat the Broadway Merchants of Los Angeles by a score of 6 to 5. Last Sunday the same boys came out to "get even," but again our boys were too much for them. This time they browned them to the tune of 43.

The concert given Tuesday evening browned them to the tune of 43.

The concert given Tuesday evening by the Glendale Band proved that the time they put in rehearsals has not been wasted. They were met on the corner of Fourth and Brand boulevard by an apreciation andlence for whose benefit they rendered a number of excellent selections. By the time they reached the corner of Fourth street and Glendale avenue the evening was rather advanced and the best part of the crowd had dispersed to their various homes, but those who remained were more than pleased with the music. Mr. Zerr proved his appreciation by treating the entire orchestra to cigars and soda water.

"Smile and boost," is the word of today, and if any one is doing it lately the carpenters and builders are certainly the ones to whom credit is due! It does not matter in which direction a person looks their eye is certain to rest upon a dwelling in the course of construction and the best part of it is the fact that all these dwellings are of the better class. A fine new residence is being started on West-Fifth street, west of Pacific street, another one will be erected shortly on the same block, and several new homes will be built on Ivy street in the near future. Four years ago Ivy street boasted of having two houses, and today there are very few vacant lots on the entire street.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON CLUB.

The club spent a most enjoyable day at the home of Mrs. John Hobbs December I. The morning hours were occupied in sewing for the Victoria Home of Los Angeles. A bountiful luncheon was prepared by the host-vesses, Mrs. Hobbs, Mrs. Logan, Mrs. Stephenson and Mrs. Camack, after which Mrs, C. L. Torrence gave a very interesting talk on Child Labor. The reports of the delegates to the Los Angeles District Federation were splendid, there being a representative at nearly all of the Round Tables. The pennant was awarded the Thursday Afternoon Club by the Los Angeles District Federation for the best work in Household Economics last year.

Tag Day, which was held Saturday, Nov. 26, proved quite as great a success as usual, and netted in the neighborhood of twenty dollars.

The club will meet with Mrs. WH. Halleck December 17. Mrs. John Farrar and Mrs. E. J. Parratt will entertain with Mrs. Halleck Miss Letta Horlocher, instructor at Cumnock and the Girls' Collegiate, will speak on "Artists of Los Angeles and Their Work."

Frank H McKenny of Los Angeles, recently of the East, has purchased the interest of O. C. Logan in the new hardware store on San Fernando road. Although the store has not yet been stocked the transaction was put through and the new owner expects to be open for business about the 15th of this month.

A crows of residents of Tropico went to San Pedro Jast Sunday. They went aboard the Japanese warships and also noted the extensive improvements which the government is making at that point. The company consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Feters.

The old storeroom on Glendale at the head of Cypress avenue has been vacated. It is very evident by the windows, which have been boarded up, that it is not the intention of any convention, so that it is very probable that the site will be used for residence purposes later.
